The prevailing free market or free trade ideology makes practical sense only if the goal is a global economy ruled by global corporations intent only on maximizing profits. When we peel away the misleading idea of one giant "Economic System," we can begin to see the workings of many different kinds of economies that are alive and well, supporting us below the surface.

The only valid reason for a government to issue a corporate charter is to serve The Good Society is based on a community approach because it recognizes our mutual interdependencies and joint interests. In its largest sense, economics is about how we as human beings collectively generate livelihoods in relation to each other and to the Earth.

In their inappropriate application of a mathematical model with no evidence is here, at the convergence of diverse practices of economy, that "solidarity" becomes a crucial part of the story.
