They make me want to gag. Watch where the eyes go while the person is speaking, and then during a nonthreatening conversation casually ask a question that will make the subject try to remember something visual and factual. ShelivesonLongIslandwithherhusbandandthreechildren.Yourhandsshould Tonya Reiman explains how communication works—what the words you speak actually say about you, and how the perfect pitch can help you achieve your goals, convince your boss or client you should get the account, give a killer presentation, or win control of the remote without ticking off your spouse! Your hands should be at your sides, not crossed in front of you like a barrier. ReaditForwardReadit.JohnWelwoodandJohnWelwood. In a down economy, this is becoming more and more of an issue within corporations where everyone is afraid for their job and is striving to display prowess. Remember the research showing that in order to become as successful as you're capable of being, you must be a good communicator.
