In 1714 and William was a member of the Provincial Assembly; and in when Birmingham Meeting The Brinton family was erected, he was one of the trustees of the title. In when the British threatened an attack on Philadelphia, he enlisted as a private in a company called the American Grays.

Her mention of travel arrangements. When she was fifty-four years of age she accompanied a well-known " public friend " of that day, Elizabeth Webb, on a visit to members of the Society in New England – then a formidable undertaking – as we may see from the following extract from a letter from Elizabeth to Jean's eldest son: The letter informs him that cousin Charles[Coale] will be visiting The Brinton family and that he might wish to borrow money for investment.
