Down, deep down, under all discouragement and rebuff, I knew I would "arrive" some day. I cannot tell just what I was afraid of. I did not like her as well as Katie. It had never occurred to me to call it so; and, on first thought, it did not seem to me that there was much to be said about that same long, monotonous struggle. In the fall of I went to Charlottetown, and attended the Prince of Wales College that winter studying for a teacher's license.

They were almost the only things that did grow. In the inner office two reported the other children went so, and I felt that this was a humiliating difference.
